UNIVERSITY SERVICE

Program Director, International Relations Major. January 2010–present. Serve as the founding director for this interdisciplinary major program. Responsibilities include academic marketing, curriculum oversight, and program assessment. By its fifth anniversary, the program had one of the largest major counts in the College of Arts and Sciences (later split, with the major going into the School of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences). By its tenth year, the program had graduated the university’s first-ever Truman scholarship finalist, three of its first four Fulbright awardees, and several Boren scholars and Gillman grant recipients. Program graduates have entered elite law schools, globally ranked international affairs graduate programs, the Peace Corps, the military, the State Department, and various roles on Capitol Hill.

Member, National Fellowships and Awards Committee. August 2016–present. This university-level committee evaluates, ranks, and interviews applicants for various prestigious scholarship and fellowship programs, including the Truman, Boren, Goldwater, Marshall, Rhodes, and other competitive fellowships.

Member, Fulbright Committee. 2016–present. This university-level committee interviews applicants for Fulbright teaching assistant and research fellowships.

Chair, Faculty Awards and Nominations Committee for the College of the Humanities and Behavioral Sciences, 2022–present. The committee was appointed by the dean to recruit, assist, and nominate candidates for college- and university-level faculty awards recognizing teaching, service, and scholarship.

Member, Latin American Studies Program Committee. 2016–present. This committee periodically advises the director of this multidisciplinary minor.

Member, Tenure and Promotion Committees. Committee members are appointed by school deans and provide the initial review of faculty applicants for tenure, promotion in rank, and sabbaticals. I served a two-year term for the College of Arts and Sciences (2016–2018) and a one-year term for the School of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences (2021–2022). Served as an outside member for a promotion application in the School of Communication (2021).

Faculty Co-Facilitator for the College of the Humanities and Behavioral Sciences, 2019–2020. Appointed by the dean to assist in administering college-level meetings; worked with colleagues to help our dean identify faculty accomplishments and address concerns.

Chair, Department of Political Science. 2007–2017. Appointed as the founding chair of a new academic department in my fourth year as an assistant professor. Responsibilities included recruitment and mentoring of tenure-track and term-appointment faculty, annual performance reviews, adjudicating student and faculty concerns, program quality assessment, coordination of program marketing, and other initiatives to enhance program expansion. During my leadership period, the department grew from two to six full-time faculty members, became the institutional home for a second major, overhauled its curriculum, established student outcomes assessment processes, and increased the number of majors served from 38 to 130 students. The number of peer-reviewed publications by the department's faculty grew from a handful to several dozen. While chair, I became the first political scientist tenured at the university and the first to be internally promoted to full professor since at least the 1950s. The three tenure-eligible faculty I hired and mentored through their full pre-tenure period were tenured and promoted.

Truman Scholarship program campus representative. 2014–2016. Before the University established an office for fellowships and awards with a full-time director, I served as the University's first Truman Scholarship program representative.

Chair and member of faculty search committees. Chaired seven searches in Political Science (2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2014, 2015) and for the founding director of the HPU Survey Research Center (2009). Served on searches for Anthropology (2009), Strategic Communication (2011), Political Communication (2014), Political Science (2016, 2017, 2018, 2022, and 2023), History (2021), and Psychology (2023).

Member, Study Abroad Committee. 2005–2008; 2015–2017. The committee reviews courses and programs that involve faculty members taking students abroad.

Member, Honors Scholar Program Committee. 2006–2014. The committee's major project while I served was fully redesigning the program to match the changing needs of a stronger student body. I led honors students on multi-day trips to Charleston and Savannah.

Faculty Senator, 2011–2014, elected at-large. Faculty Senate receives and articulates faculty concerns, studies faculty-related issues, and provides advice to the university's administration.

Senate Elections Officer, 2011–2013. Elected by the Faculty Senate. Responsible for administering multiple university-wide faculty elections.

Member, Institutional Assessment Board. 2006–2009. The committee worked with the university's director of assessment to review and make recommendations related to instructional and academic program performance.

Member, Institutional Review Board (IRB). 2005–2009. HPU's inaugural IRB was established in 2005. I was part of an eight-member faculty team that studied best practices at peer institutions and assisted the IRB director in drafting HPU's first set of human-research policies, IRB approval protocols, and a policy handbook.

Chair, Ad Hoc Committee to establish the High Point University Survey Research Center. 2009. The committee worked with the Provost to develop a rudimentary, starting vision for the center and hired its first director, who was later tenured in the Department of Political Science.

Faculty Representative, New Core Curriculum Implementation Taskforce. 2009–2010. Served as one of three faculty representatives to advise the Provost in implementing a new university curriculum. Curricular changes included a university-wide shift from 3-credit to 4-credit courses to achieve a reduction in the then-standard faculty teaching load by two courses each year.

Chair, Teaching Evaluation and Assessment Taskforce. 2006–2008. The task force used surveys and focus groups to analyze student, department chair, and faculty behavior related to student rating forms that evaluate instructors each term. The committee developed new policies and a uniform assessment form for the university.

Common read facilitator. Volunteered to guide groups of incoming first-year students in discussions of influential books. 2015, 2016, and 2017. This version of the program ended after three years.

Student group advisor, High Point University College Democrats. 2008–2015, 2020–2022.

Student group advisor, Student Political Science Association. 2022–present.

Student group advisor, HPU Chapter of Amnesty International. 2005–2009.

Student group advisor, HPU Political Science Club. December 2005–2009.

Student group advisor and coach, HPU’s Big South Conference Quiz Bowl team. 2006, 2007.
